ABOUT THE DIRECTORY

The San Francisco Department of Police Accountability created this directory to provide better, more open access to and information about civilian and police oversight agencies in California.

This Directory is a jumping off point for the oversight alliance's goal of providing common resources and effective tools for modern civilian oversight of law enforcement.

Civilian oversight agencies are essential to transparency and accountability in modern policing. Yet many complainants cannot even locate the appropriate agency where they should submit a complaint. This project was prompted by the Department of Police Accountability's receipt of numerous complaints about outside agencies, including out-of-state police departments, and even complaints from other countries. This is reflective of how difficult and confusing it can be for both complainants and oversight professionals find the appropriate oversight agency or complaint venue.

Across the 210 hours it took to do the research, editing, and graphic design, Department of Police Accountability employees were frequently reminded of not only the importance of the directory but also of civilian oversight of law enforcement in general. In most jurisdictions without civilian oversight, complaint forms and complaint processes were incredibly difficult to find on those occasions we were able to find them at all. Police departments that did have a complaint page often prefaced it with intimidating language requiring complainants to submit the complaint in person, discouraging complainant anonymity, describing invasive investigative procedures, and offering ambiguous warnings about the severity of the repercussions if anything in the complaint was found to be false.

The San Francisco Department of Police Accountability provides this resource to enable all people who have a complaint about law enforcement to find the proper agency and the best available contact information, to allow civilian oversight agencies to direct complaints to the proper agency, and for the civilian agencies to identify each other and build a foundation for greater cooperation and information sharing as we venture forward.

INTRODUCTION BY DPA DIRECTOR PAUL HENDERSON

The San Francisco Department of Police Accountability is committed to providing the City of San Francisco with independent and impartial law enforcement oversight through investigations, policy recommendations, and performance audits to ensure that policing reflects the values and concerns of the community.

The Department of Police Accountability's mission and values are served by spearheading and embracing this coalition of law enforcement oversight agencies as together we navigate the dawn of a new era of police accountability. With the recent passing of SB 2, which finally puts in place a path to POST decertification, and SB 16, which provides for even more transparency of misconduct investigations, our work is as important as ever.

Recent years have seen an increased call for oversight and accountability of law enforcement nationwide and here in San Francisco. I am pleased to present this Directory of California civilian oversight agencies. My vision is that our community, solidarity, and exchange of information and ideas will lead all our agencies to excellence. I want to see a California where no community must fear law enforcement, and where arrest and use of force by law enforcement agencies are a last resort. I want to make sure that there are no barriers to any person or group exercising their civic duties or their rights as they relate to law enforcement. The Department of Police Accountability has made long strides of progress towards this vision with key internal reforms, continued work with the COPS Collaborative Reform Process, and the reshaping of both our policy and auditing functions. My hope is that the information we share with each other will continue to raise the bar for each of our agencies.

Total Budget: $1,200,000

The BART OIPA's mission is to provide an effective independent citizen oversight system that promotes integrity and encourages systemic change and improvement in the police services that the San Francisco Bay Area Rapid Transit District (BART) provides to the public by ensuring that internal police accountability system functions properly; that behavioral, procedural, and policy deficiencies are identified and appropriately addressed, including racial profiling and allegations of racially abusive treatment; and, that complaints are investigated through an objective and fair process for all parties involved. The system will analyze allegations of misconduct; utilize data to identify trends, including disciplinary outcomes and trends; recommend corrective action and or training; maintain confidentiality; make policy recommendations; and report regularly to the BART Board of Directors and the public. The essential community involvement component of the system shall be accomplished through the inclusion of a BART Police Citizen Review Board.

OIPA was formed by Assembly Bill 1586, signed by the Governor of California in 2010 to provide effective, independent oversight of the BART Police Department (BPD) by ensuring that internal police accountability systems function properly, that behavioral, procedural and policy deficiencies are identified and appropriately addressed, and that complaints are investigated through an objective and fair process. The operation of OIPA and the scope of its duties are defined by the BART Citizen Oversight Model (Model). The Model also defines the role of the 11-member BART Police Citizen Review Board (BPCRB). The Model provides that OIPA shall, at all times, be totally independent. All investigations, findings, recommendations and requests made by OIPA reflect the views of OIPA alone. OIPA is, therefore, entirely independent of the BPD, but has been granted unfettered access to BPD reports and personnel records pursuant to the Model.

OIPA is staffed by BART employees who report directly to the elected Board of Directors (Board). OIPA does not report to the BART General Manager or to the Chief of the BPD and, as discussed above, OIPA remains totally independent under the terms of the Model.

The Citizen Police Complaint Commission (CPCC) is one of six chartered commissions established to provide feedback and input to the City Manager, Mayor, and City Council on specified matters. The CPCC investigates allegations of police misconduct and reviews the service provided by members of the Long Beach Police Department. Like all commissions, the CPCC provides a rewarding opportunity for Long Beach residents to be directly involved in serving our community. Commissioners provide a valuable insight into the community's perception of and experience with members of the Long Beach Police Department.

The CPCC is neither an advocate for the complainant nor for the police personnel. Their findings can result in the accused personnel being disciplined, trained or exonerated. The Commission cannot, however, recommend discipline or penalty. While the Commission does not set policy, its findings have resulted in policies being changed or clarified to best serve the community.

The Los Angeles County Office of Inspector General (OIG) was created by the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors to monitor the activities of the Los Angeles County Sheriff's and Probation Departments.

Created by ordinance in 2014, the OIG reports to the Board of Supervisors as part of their duty to supervise the official conduct of County Officers under Government Code section 25303. Reports provided to Board of Supervisors are public reports.

In January 2016, the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors created and implemented the Sheriff Civilian Oversight Commission. OIG works closely with this Commission in fulfilling OIG's mission.

In 2018, the Board of Supervisors directed OIG to investigate safety concerns within the Los Angeles County Probation Department's juvenile camps and halls. Later in October 2019, the Board of Supervisors voted unanimously to create a civilian oversight commission over the Probation Department. Similarly, as with the Sheriff's Oversight Commission, this Commission will work closely with the OIG to accomplish its goals and objectives.

The mission of OIG is to promote constitutional policing and the fair and impartial administration of justice. OIG's scope includes matters relevant to the policies, procedures, practices, and operations of both departments. Investigations may include any unit within each respective Department including any employee both sworn and civilian, working in any capacity. OIG is primarily an Auditor/Monitor model type. OIG may examine and review many types of documents including agency concluded investigations to make recommendations based on agency policies and training. OIG on limited occasions conducted investigations when directed by the respective agencies or the LA County Board of Supervisors.

The Office of the Inspector General (OIG) is an independent entity established through a voter-approved amendment to the City Charter in 1995. The original duty of the OIG was to inspect, on behalf of the Police Commission, the LAPD's handling of complaints of employee misconduct, and to perform other duties as assigned by the Commission.

The 1998 Rampart incident, involving misconduct by numerous gang unit officers, triggered an effort for LAPD reform and significant strengthening of the OIG. Beginning in 2000, the OIG's new powers included the authority to initiate any audit or investigation of the LAPD without prior approval of the Police Commission, guaranteed access to all Department information and documents, and the power to subpoena a witness at will.

In 2001, the City entered into a Consent Decree with the U.S. Department of Justice. The Decree required the Department to reform its practices in nine major areas. The Federal Court appointed a monitor to work with the OIG in conducting oversight and evaluation of the Department's efforts to satisfy the Decree. Relying on OIG oversight, the court lifted the Decree in 2009 by substituting a Transition Agreement to govern the last phases of reform. In 2013, the court allowed withdrawal from the Transition Agreement because all objectives had been met, and the OIG then assumed full oversight of the Department.

The mission of the Community Police Review Commission is to promote public confidence in the professionalism and accountability of the sworn staff of the Riverside Police Department (RPD). The CPRC accomplishes this mission by conducting an independent review of officer-involved death (OID) cases and citizen complaints. The CPRC or the CPRC Manager may request independent investigation services to obtain further information about OID's or complaints. The CPRC may recommend changes in RPD policy and maintains community relationships through continuous public outreach efforts.

The Mayor and City Council nominate and appoint all nine Commissioners of the CPRC. In order to fairly represent the city, that membership is distributed among all wards of the city. Commissioners serve four-year terms and may only serve two terms for a total of eight years. By ensuring an independent and thorough review of all OID and complaint cases brought before the Commission, the CPRC is able to advise the Mayor and City Council on all police and community relations issues. Case review findings and suggestions are also shared with the City Manager and Police Chief.

Although ensuring the Mayor and those mentioned above stay informed, the CPRC strives to make the greatest impact while serving the citizens of Riverside. The CPRC is tasked with ensuring good relations between the Riverside Police Officers and the community they serve. The Commission's efforts serve to increase public trust in the Riverside Police Department. It seeks to provide the public with assurance that any allegations of misconduct lodged against a sworn officer will be fairly and thoroughly reviewed.

Through public outreach efforts, the CPRC provides a forum whereby community members can express their opinions and seek answers about the Police Department. Complaints, concerns or suggestions can immediately be shared with the Police Chief and appropriate staff thereby improving the quality of service provided by the Police Department. In addition, the CPRC educates the public on the purpose of the Commission.

In 2016, an amendment to the San Francisco City Charter (section 4.136) renamed the Office of Citizen Complaints the Department of Police Accountability, removed the Department of Police Accountability from the police department's budget and provided to the Department of Police Accountability the power to conduct periodic audits of the San Francisco Police Department.

The Independent Office of Law Enforcement Review and Outreach (IOLERO) was established by the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors in 2015. IOLERO is an independent, non-police county agency. IOLERO's mission is to strengthen the relationship between the Sheriff's Office and the community it serves. IOLERO's primary functions include reviewing complaints against the Sheriff's Office, community outreach and making policy recommendations to the Sheriff's Office.

One of IOLERO's primary missions is to engage the community in order to make sure you are aware of our work and to be informed about your viewpoints, concerns and experiences. Our Community Advisory Council (CAC), composed of volunteers from across Sonoma County, helps IOLERO carry out this mission. Our goal is to be present at a minimum of one community event per month. For example, we host a booth at the Cinco de Mayo celebration in Roseland and we give presentations at smaller community events such as the Senior Health Fair in Cloverdale. Additionally, we host community outreach meetings at different locations throughout the county.

IOLERO makes meaningful policy recommendations to the Sheriff's Office based on the information we glean from the complaints, comments and feedback we receive, and other issues of concern that arise in our community.

OIR Group has been repeatedly asked to evaluate the most sensitive and important responsibilities of police agencies, including use of force, internal affairs operations, complaint intake and investigations, training, and accountability. This top to bottom review examines these processes and provides recommendations based on best police practices. OIR Group has 15 years' experience evaluating police shootings, in-custody deaths, and other critical incidents. Our members have rolled out to more than 400 shooting scenes and have observed and consulted on investigations in real time.

OIR Group members have developed a detailed understanding of the activities and commonalities that contribute to unnecessary or excessive force. In countless cases, OIR Group has worked to identify dangerous tactics in critical incidents and worked with agencies to develop remedial action plans to address them -- including accountability, training, policy development, and supervisory issues. OIR Group has also worked with police departments to ensure that their own internal investigation and review processes are thorough and unbiased.

OIR Group has helped police departments draft well-tailored operations policies in difficult subject areas such as post-shooting interview procedures, use of video evidence, Taser use policy, and shooting at suspects in moving vehicles. We also assess the sufficiency and enforcement of existing policies and assist in agencies' reform efforts on use of force, internal investigative and review protocols, internal affairs processes, and disciplinary guidelines.

A law enforcement agency's legitimacy depends on its ability to conduct internal investigations into allegations of officer misconduct in a thorough, unbiased manner. We have reviewed internal investigations from a broad variety of law enforcement agencies to identify weaknesses in protocols, training and standards of review. When requested, OIR Group has conducted high profile internal affairs investigations, including the Kelly Thomas internal affairs investigations in Fullerton, California, and several internal investigations of the Oakland Police Department in which the subject officers were supervisors and/or members of command staff.
